Swedish Plane Meets Mishap After Taking Off Chief

BULLETIN
Rome, June 25—(AP)—Natale Ceccioni, motor chief of the dirigible Italia and one of the five men still stranded off Northeast Land, has been rescued.

(BY THE AP)
Spurred by the rescue of Gen. Nobile, the international group of airplanes and ships in Spitzbergen waters bent every effort today to rescue the remaining stranded men.

Swedish fliers on the vessel Quest at Cape Henlopen were ready to fly to the Nobile camp again, particularly to rescue Lieut. Lundborg. Swedish flier whose plane overturned on his second trip to the camp.

Unconfirmed dispatches reported that the Russian icebreaker Krassin was in communication with Rold Amundsen and the five men of the French seaplane which disappeared a week ago while flying to Nobile's aid.

The base ship Citta di Milano has left Kings Bay for Virgo Bay to be closed to the scene of the rescue work. General Nobile, whose leg was injured, is aboard her.

REPORT UNFOUNDED
London, June 25—(AP)—The Soviet news agency stated today that reports that the Russian icebreaker Krassin had signalled Rold Amundsen were unfounded.

Nobile Tells of Rescue from Ice

BY GENERAL NOBILE
Base ship Citta di Milano, Virgo Bay, Spitzbergen, June 25—(Via Stefani Agency, Rome)—(AP)—When yesterday morning Lieutenant Lundborg landed near our tent I told him he ought to take off Ceccioni on his first flight, then Behoune, then Troiano, then me, then Vigliani and Biagi. Lundborg refused. He told me he had received orders to take me off immediately, for I could give directions for searching for the others. He insisted firmly and my comrades also insisted firmly that I should leave first and that I would make them more tranquil for every eventuality. So I was forced to yield against the dictates of my heart and also to avoid delay.

At the time the plane departed Ceccione was well. I turned over direction of the group to Vigliani. I hope to embrace them soon and I hope divine providence will allow me to see again the others.

sen, missing Norwegian explorer, were unfounded. The Krassin has reported nothing of Amundsen as yet.

SWEDISH AIRMEN BUSY
Oslo, Norway, June 25—(AP)—Advices from Spitzbergen state that Swedish airmen are starting today from the vessel Quest in an effort to reach Lieutenant Lundborg who crashed on the ice at Nobile's camp off Northeast Land while attempting to rescue the stranded crew.

PARIS HEARD REPORT
London, June 25—(AP)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Paris quotes the newspaper L'Information as publishing a report from Moscow that the Russian icebreaker Krassin is in communication with Rold Amundsen and his five companions missing in a French seaplane.

The dispatch said that Russian aviators would attempt to rescue the men with a Junkers plane which is aboard the icebreaker.

The Krassin sailed from Bergen for Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, last week and was to cover virtually the same route which Amundsen had planned to follow.

ARE WELL PROVIDED
Stockholm, Sweden, June 25—(AP)—Lieutenant E. Lundborg, Swedish aviator who rescued Gen. Umberto Nobile off Northeast Land only to be stranded himself on a second effort at further rescue work, has reported that the five men still marooned are well equipped and have sufficient provisions for two months.

VETERANS ARE HOME
Walter M. Smith of this city, a member of Horace F. Orr post, No. 540, Veterans of Foreign Wars has been elected to the office of department inspector. Delegates to the annual convention which was held in Decatur last week returned home Saturday evening. Danville was selected for the 1929 meeting place. The Dixon delegates to the convention were Ed. Hammill, Wales Scheller, George Walker, Walter M. Smith, George Platten and Clifford Eatling.

WIDER ROAD BOOSTERS
Over a score of Dixon civic boosters were in attendance at a luncheon at the Colonial Inn in Grand Detour today, sponsored by the local branch of the Chicago Motor Club, in the interest of a wider highway on route 6 between Dixon and Chicago. Charles Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor Club, and Putney Haight and James Bulger of the Chicago Tribune were here to attend the luncheon and add their influence to the efforts of the local promoters of a campaign for a wider pavement.

Swedish aviation authorities state that the ice floe upon which the party is encamped is about 300 yards long and 200 yards wide. It is covered by eight inches of hard snow on which it would be possible for a light military plane carrying two people to land.

The Swedish Minister of Defense and chief of the aviation department, as soon as he received this message, ordered the dispatch of such machines to Spitzbergen to take part in the rescue work.

Tell of Accident.
The Swedish air men still at Spitzbergen, who are preparing for further efforts to rescue the five from the Italia near Foyn Island, and Lieutenant Lundborg, who is with them, today sent an official report to Stockholm stating briefly what had taken place.

General Nobile was stated to have been rescued with a broken leg. The same plane which rescued him, accompanied by a Swedish seaplane, and piloted by Lieutenant Lundborg, left the base at Virgo Bay to pick up the five remaining members of the crew. In order to lighten weight the mechanic remained at Virgo Bay. The machine, however, on landing capsized but Lieutenant Lundborg was not injured.

No further mention of the seaplane was made in the report, but presumably it returned to the base with news of what had happened to Lieutenant Lundborg's machine.

RUGGED BEAUTY MARKS ROUTE OF CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Unusual Scenery to Greet the President as "Commuter"

Superior, Wis., June 24—(AP)—Barring another ten-day "flood", President Coolidge is to begin commuting this week between Cedar Island Lodge and his executive offices here. This trip from the Brule river retreat and return, takes approximately two hours.

What kind of roads will the President pass over? What kind of scenery is there in store for him? What chance of accident?

The country around the lodge, unmarked by billboard advertisements, is intriguing in its wildness. Wonderful dirt roads stretch mile on mile without even a fence to prevent deer, bears, wolves, porcupines or ground hogs wandering at will. The animals are often seen sauntering across the highways. Houses are few and far between.

Entrancing Beauty
The first part of President Coolidge's route, after he leaves the private tree-walled two mile lane of the Henry Clay Pierce estate, is of an enchanting rugged beauty.

The highway soon turns into heavier timber and the forest green striped by the slender white trunks of birch trees, closes in on the traveler. No flowers bloom, for the shade is too dense.

At the end of two miles the President crosses the South Shore Railroad tracks where a new station was built in honor of his arrival. A colony of Indians lives at the crossroads and it was from among the number that Mr. Coolidge picked his guide, John Larock. Here the route turns west toward Lake Nebagamon, sky-blue clover-shaped little body of water, noted as well as the Brule for its fishing.

Mr. Coolidge in the next five miles will pass a few farms. Six miles after he leaves the private lane, his car will cross the first stream, the "Little" Brule, tributary of the Brule.

Hill Freshly Painted
At the eight mile mark, the town of Lake Nebagamon is entered. There comes the hamlet of Poplar and the Poplar Town Hall, freshly painted, as are the other buildings there.

After crossing the Amnicon River at the 23-mile mark, one of the few orchards of this part of the state comes into sight, and a short distance down the road is obtained the first view of Duluth, set in the side of the ponderous Green Ridge across the bay, some twenty miles away.

Gravel is supplanted by concrete. Big billboards begin to plot out the landscape. A big white arch of welcome looms and the city limits of Superior are passed. The speedometer registers exactly 38.5 miles to the executive office from the Lodge.

Divorce is Granted Mrs. Luella Parsons

Copies of the Los Angeles Record of June 18, received in Dixon today, contain the following account of a divorce granted Mrs. Luella Parsons, well known former Dixontine, who has gained fame in the newspaper world, and who is now in Houston, Tex., to "cover" the Democratic national convention for the newspaper syndicate with which she is connected:

Luella Parsons, newspaper syndicate writer, received a divorce decree from John Murray McCaffrey of Tallulah, La., on November 30, 1927, it was revealed today.

Judge McComb granted the decree on the ground of desertion. Suit was brought by Miss Parsons under the name of Louella Rose McCaffrey.

MORRISON MAN IS HELD ON CHARGE OF KIDNAPPING 13-YEAR-OLD GIRL ON FRIDAY

Arrested Yesterday in Rock Falls and is Now in Jail

Nick Prophet, 30, of Morrison, for whom a two days' search had been made by Whiteside county authorities in connection with the disappearance of Rose Shepard, 13 year old Morrison girl, was arrested at Rock Falls late yesterday afternoon.

The girl, in a near hysterical condition, was found with Prophet. She said he lured her into his car on Friday morning, after locking up the ice cream parlor in which they were both employed. She is now at the home of her parents and Prophet is in the Whiteside county jail at Morrison. He was booked on a charge of kidnapping.

According to the story told to Sheriff J. W. Kelly by the girl last night, Prophet left Morrison Friday noon and drove to Chicago, where they spent Friday night. On Saturday Prophet returned to Morrison, but refused to allow the girl to get out of the car, and doubled back to Rock Falls, she said.

PRINCETON BANK HEAD KILLED IN FALL SATURDAY

Albert H. Ferris is Victim of Mishap in Los Angeles

The death of Albert H. Ferris, president of the Citizens' National bank of Princeton, who was killed in Los Angeles Saturday when he fell from the eighth story of a building under construction in the downtown district, was accidental, according to word received yesterday by relatives in Princeton from the widow, Mrs. Sue Bryant Ferris.

Mrs. Ferris said her husband, on a sight seeing trip, had climbed to the upper stories of the building to obtain a better view of the city. While walking about, his foot caught in the loose flooring and he fell.

Harry U. Bailey, a director of the bank of which Mr. Ferris was president, yesterday said the banker and his wife had gone to California in April. The directors of the bank had voted Mr. Ferris a six months' leave of absence.

Mrs. Ferris is a grandniece of William Cullen Bryant, the poet.

SIXTY INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK IN KANSAS TODAY

Fast Missouri Pacific Passenger Train is Derailed at Iola

Iola, Kansas, June 25—(AP)—Upwards of sixty persons were injured, several probably fatally when three cars of the Missouri Pacific passenger train "Southerner" from Little Rock, Ark., to Kansas City, were derailed near Durand, 16 miles west of here, at 4 a. m.

Thirty injured were brought here to the St. John's hospital where the condition of 15 was announced as critical. Physicians held little hope for the recovery of three or four of the injured.

Missouri Pacific surgeons and nurses from divisional headquarters at Coffeyville responded to calls for aid, and wrecking crews started from Coffeyville and Osawatomie, Kansas. W. F. Kirk, general superintendent, left his headquarters in Kansas City by special train to investigate.

Among the injured were R. M. Gardner, conductor; Charles Kerr, flagman, both of Osawatomie, and Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Dickerson of Wichita, Kansas, who boarded the train at Coffeyville.

Mrs. Michael Murphy Died in Waterloo, Ia.

Mrs. Michael Murphy of Dixon, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. T. Stanton at Waterloo, Iowa, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, according to word received by Dixon relatives. The body will be brought to Dixon, arriving this afternoon at 5 o'clock, and funeral services will be held at the home of Andrew M. Smith Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock and at St. Patrick's Catholic church at 9:30 with burial in the Amboy cemetery.

Mrs. Murphy had been in failing health for some time and her death was not unexpected, as she was 83 years of age. She was born in Alsace, Lorraine, France, coming to America when she was seventeen years of age. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Stanton, at whose home she died, and three sons, Dennis Murphy of Stillwater, Minn., and William J. and Andrew M. Smith, both of Dixon.

Fred Tedwall Drops Dead at Noon Today

Fred Tedwall, aged 79, dropped dead shortly before noon today while working in the yard at the home of his daughter with whom he was working in the yard at the home of his home, Mrs. Nettie Wallace, 515 North Dixon avenue. Mr. Tedwall was assisting in repairing a tile ditch at the Wallace home when he suddenly sank down to the ground, death being almost instantaneous. He had been enjoying excellent health and it was believed that his sudden passing was the result of a heart attack.

Mr. Tedwall had been a resident of Lee county for more than 20 years and had retired from active life. For some years he had made his home in Dixon and was a member of the local lodge of Elks. An inquest will be conducted over the remains this afternoon at 3:30. The obituary and funeral announcement will be published later.

Hunter is Beaten by Young Student

Wimbledon, Eng., June 25—(AP)—Francis T. Hunter, American Davis Cup tennis team-mate of Bill Tilden, suffered a surprising defeat today in the first round of the Wimbledon singles championships. Ed Andrews of New Zealand put the American out of the tournament after a strenuous five set battle by scores of 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5.

Although Andrews, a young New Zealand student now attending Cambridge University, holds the championship of his homeland, his defeat of Hunter after a furious engagement provided the sensation of the opening day's play. Hunter had been conceded an easy victory in advance by the critics.

Junior Senator from Idaho Died After Operation

ASSOCIATED PRESS
FRANK R. GOODING

Gooding, Idaho, June 25—(AP)—Death has terminated the second term of Senator Frank R. Gooding of Idaho.

The junior Republican Senator from Idaho died yesterday at the home of his daughter in the little town he founded and which bears his name. He came here to rest after an operation the fore part of this month. He had not been in the best of health since contracting influenza at Washington, December last. Death was attributed to cancer of the intestines.

Senator Gooding started his political career as Governor of this state during the turbulent days when "Big Bill" Hayward was on trial charged with implication in the slaying of Governor Frank Steuneger. Following two terms of Governor, he returned to active direction of his sheep business.

Mrs. Gooding and three children, John Gooding, Mrs. Maud Paul and Mrs. A. J. Schubert, at whose home the senator died, were at the bedside. Senator Gooding was 69 years old.

Tentative arrangements provided for funeral services at the Schubert home Wednesday under the direction of the Masonic lodge.

Polo Man Stricken at Camp This Noon

George H. James, aged 63, a resident of Polo, dropped dead this morning about 11 o'clock at the summer cottage at Bovey's Spring in Pine Creek township. He and his wife had leased the cottage for the summer and had occupied it for the past two months.

Mr. James went out this forenoon to cut some wood and it was while this engaged that he was stricken suddenly and fell dead. The Dixon Y. M. C. A. girl's camp is located a short distance from the cottage and members of the camping party were the first to see him and notified neighbors to summon a physician. Dr. McPherson of Polo responded but upon his arrival pronounced the aged man dead.

The deceased formerly conducted a billiard hall at Polo and for the past few seasons had been spending the summer at the Springs on account of his health. He had been in apparently good health recently, although suffering from complications and infirmities. Coroner J. C. Atkins of Forreston was notified and is conducting an inquest this afternoon.

ISSUE BLOCKS REAL HARMONY IN CONVENTION

Leaders Decide All the Big Meetings Will be in Evenings

BULLETIN.
BY H. H. DAUGHERTY.

Associated Press staff writer with the Ohio delegation, enroute to Houston, at Longview, Texas, June 25—(AP)—Speeding southward, the Ohio delegation to the Democratic National Convention has indicated its readiness to deliver approximately forty of its forty-eight votes to Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, on the first ballot, if that number will place him within striking distance of the presidential nomination.

BULLETIN.
Houston, Texas, June 25—(AP)—On convening at noon tomorrow, the Democratic National Convention, after the makeup of various committees has been announced, will recess until 7 p. m., central standard time. Shortly after that hour, Claude G. Bowers as temporary chairman will deliver his keynote address.

Houston, June 25—(AP)—Prohibition stood today as the chief problem with which Democracy must contend and conquer to insure party harmony.

Submerging all other issues at a time when indications point to the selection of Governor Smith as the party standard bearer, the protracted controversy between the wets and the dry apparently was injected into nearly every angle of pre-convention proceedings.

Three Opinions.
The question of how it should be handled found opinion divided into three groups—one favoring a bone-dry plank in the party platform; another advocating repeal of the 18th amendment, and a third, proposing a delegation in favor of law enforcement with special reference to the prohibition laws.

Dangling before the eyes of those who hoped for a peaceful outcome, was the spectre that the prohibition fight might reach the floor. In some quarters it was felt that the ultra-drys would battle to the last ditch and those holding this view referred to the many meetings being held by law enforcement organizations in Houston as substantiating this position.

Representatives of 32 national dry organizations today drafted a plank for submission to the resolutions committee of the convention calling for the nomination of candidates openly committed by their utterances, acts and records to a positive enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and its supporting laws.

By BYRON PRICE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Houston, June 25—(AP)—Meeting again like a reunited company of old comrades, the democracies of east and west trooped into Houston today and joined hands under the high flung banners of Smith of New York.

Caucusing as they came, the fast gathering delegations to the national convention turned into certainties many of the promises of support on which the Smith men are relying for a quick nomination when the balloting begins later in the week. An offer of forty of Ohio's forty-eight, and the expectation of similar pledges from various other states led the Smith lieutenants to predict that before nightfall he would have enough delegates openly and publicly pledged to him to bury remaining opposition in a first ballot landslide.

One Defiant Cry
The one discordant note of the whole big parade arose from a far-outnumbered contingent of dissenters, dry and anti-Tammany, and chiefly from the South. But it was a shrill, somewhat defiant note, and it may be heard again from the floor of the convention which opens at noon tomorrow.

Some of the Smith enthusiasts who said they based their opinions on reports that had come from such favorable states as Indiana, Ohio, Kansas and Tennessee, put the ultimate strength of the anti-Smith irreconcilables at around 200 votes, out of a convention total of 1,100. The anti-Smithers themselves are claiming around 400 but they refuse to say from what states they hope to get the votes.

Mr. and Mrs. William Love and children of Glenn Ellyn spent the week-end in Dixon with friends and relatives.

Mt. Morris Youths Land in Lau's Toils

Three Mt. Morris residents, two whose clothes were partly torn from them, were taken in charge by Sheriff Miller and deputies Sunday morning about 8 o'clock east of the city on the Stoney Point road. Floyd Grad and Floyd Messer were found in a field near the road, fighting fiercely. J. N. Wacaster, the senior member of the trio, was also in the field but was a non-combatant.

Messer's shirt had been torn to shreds and was found in a ditch beside the road. The two men had been fighting for some time, it was reported.

All were taken to the county jail where they were locked up. The three men are said to have been drinking and some of the party participated in an all-night celebration. At noon yesterday Wacaster was taken before Justice Grover Gehant and fined $10 and costs for his part in the celebration. Last evening friends from Mt. Morris came to Dixon and secured the release of Grady and Messer who were assessed fines of $25 and costs each on charges of disorderly conduct by Justice J. O. Stuhlis.

THEFT OF MAIL FROM LEVIATHAN STILL MYSTERY

Questioning of Many Clerks Fails to Get Solution

New York, June 25—(AP)—The theft of $500,000 from the registered mail carried to England aboard the liner Leviathan, today remained a mystery to postal authorities.

Inspectors traced the actual handling of the mail in New York and several clerks were questioned. They announced their quest had been without result.

The inspectors were without official information from either Washington or London but a cable to the office of the United States Lines here said that Scotland Yard and British post-office authorities were working on the theory that the mail bags were looted in this country prior to being placed on the ship.

"Almost a thousand men could have to have been in cahoots to commit that crime here successfully," Chief Inspector C. H. Claraham said, but he ordered the investigation in order that no time might be lost in seeking a solution of the mystery.

FREE FROM ALL NEURITIS SINCE TAKING GLY-CAS

Indigestion Almost Unbearable at Times, Before He Got New Medicine.

It is no exaggeration to say that many sufferers are amazed at the relief given them by Gly-Cas, the new vegetable preparation praised so highly in Dixon at Campbell's White Cross Pharmacy.

MR. JOSEPH KESLER.

"I had been troubled with indigestion for 20 years and my bowels had gotten in terrible condition," Mr. Joseph Kesler, 259 Mulberry St., Hammond, Ind., said just recently.

"I would be unable to lie down because of the gaseous condition of my stomach and it would seem nearly impossible for me to breathe. The fact is, my indigestion was nearly unbearable. I was suffering with neuritis in my arms when my wife's sister, of Akron, Ind., told us about this Gly-Cas and I began taking it. Gly-Cas relieved me practically from the start and I have never had another indigestion attack nor have I had single neuritis pain since. The relief Gly-Cas gave in my case is amazing to me."

The Gly-Cas Man is at the Campbell's White Cross Pharmacy, Dixon, and is daily meeting the public and explaining this surprising new vegetable medical discovery. FAIRY SONG
Shed no tear! O, shed no tear!
The flower will bloom another year.
Weep no more! O, weep no more!
Young buds sleep in the root's white core.
Dry your eyes! O, dry your eyes!
For I was taught in Paradise
To ease my breast of melodies—
Shed no tear.

Overhead, look overhead!
Among the blossoms white and red,
Look up, look up! I flutter now
On this flush pomegranate bough.
See me! 'tis this silvery bill
Ever cures the good man's ill.
Shed no tear! O, shed no tear!
The flower will bloom another year.
Adieu, adieu—I fly—adieu!
I vanish in the heaven's blue,
Adieu, adieu!
—John Keats (1795-1821).

MENU for the FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST—Fresh plums, cereal, cream, baked meat croquettes, radishes, reheated bran rolls, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Creamed asparagus on toast with poached eggs, hearts of lettuce, rice pudding with fruit sauce, lemonade.

DINNER—Onion soup, croutons, casserole of ham and potatoes, beat greens, strawberry shortcake with cream, milk, coffee.

Since a creamed vegetable figures prominently in the luncheon menu, lemonade is substituted for the noon-time glass of milk. If the required amount of milk is used for children in creamed dishes and over cereals and desserts or a fruit beverage can be given to good advantage during the hot weather.

Onion Soup
Three Bermuda onions, 4 tablespoons butter, 3 sprigs parsley, 4 cups beef broth, 1 cup water, 1-4 cup grated cheese, salt and pepper.

Melt butter and add onions cut in thin slices. Cook and stir until onions are soft and a pale straw color. Add parsley, broth, water and simmer fifteen minutes. Strain and season with salt and pepper. Serve with grated cheese and croutons.

Onion cream soup is suitable for luncheon but the recipe given above is ideal for a dinner soup.

Brilliant Social Events for Women at Democrat Convention

BY MARTHA DALRYMPLE
Associated Press Staff Writer
Houston, June 25—(AP)—Plans for the inevitable social events attendant upon the arrival of many distinguished feminine guests for the Democratic National Convention superseded the more businesslike political discussions today in women's circles.

Battle lines have been pretty well laid by early male arrivals and the women feel they can now devote themselves partially to the entertainment devices that must of necessity fall upon their shoulders.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who arrived in Houston yesterday just in time to be the guest of honor at the dedication ceremonies at the new convention hall and to be the first to sign the register at the Hospitality House, will be given breakfast tomorrow morning by the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. A. B. Foster of the local chapter is in charge of the arrangements, while Mrs. Court Norton of the Colonial Dames, will present the late President's widow with a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, whose arrival at noon today was awaited eagerly by both supporters of her husband's candidacy and those opposed to him will accept only one of the many invitations extended her and that also will be a breakfast affair, tendered by the local committee on entertainment under the direction of Mrs. J. O. Ross of Houston.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, National Committeewoman from Missouri and outgoing vice-chairman of the National Committee, will be guest of honor with Mrs. Wilson at a breakfast Wednesday morning given by the National Democratic Women's Club of which she is president.

Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham of Texas, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate, was to arrive this noon to take active charge of the club's program during the convention week, relieving Mrs. Blair of the details.

Mrs. Jessie Jones, wife of the man who brought the convention to Houston, has opened her home to several noteworthy feminine guests, most important of whom is Mrs. Wilson.

Mrs. Blair has taken a house in Houston where she has ensconced her two sisters, Mrs. Ralph Putnam, and Miss Newell, both of Joplin, Mo., and her 21 year old son, Newell Blair.

Nelson Five Hundred Club Met Wednesday

The Nelson Five Hundred club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. K. F. Seibolt. One guest, Mrs. Chas. Straughn of Sterling, was present. Three tables of progressive five hundred was the pleasant feature of the afternoon. Prizes were awarded Mrs. Straughn, who received first favor, Mrs. W. H. Ehredt, second, and the consolation prize was given to Mrs. John Emmitt. A very enjoyable luncheon was served at the close of the afternoon.

REUNION OF ALUMNI STERLING HIGH SCHOOL

Mrs. Harry Leydig of Dixon attended the annual reunion of the alumni of Sterling high school in that city Friday evening, which was featured by the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the graduation of the class of 1903, of which she was a member.

PICNIC AT LAWRENCE PARK WEDNESDAY

The members of the Prairieville Social Circle and their families will hold their annual picnic Thursday all day at Lawrence Park, Sterling.

The WOMAN'S DAY- by ALLENE SUMNER

Is being beautiful in itself enough of a gift to society to exempt one from the ordinary obligations which those without beauty must pay society? Virginia McDonnell Page who was "Miss Mobile" at the last Atlantic City beauty pageant, acted as if it does in a recent court scene in which she was the star.

The lady, being quizzed in an arson case, got mad and threw a paper weight through the District Attorney's window. The D. A. told her that she was a spoiled, proud beauty. She told him he lied. She stamped her feet.

And so many women would act like such perfect ladies if only they had the gift of beauty—as sort of an eternal "thank you" for the most remunerative of all talents.

NO FUNNIER 'N US

In China the bridegroom shoots three arrows at the bride chair in which the bride will sit during the ceremony. The arrows are supposed to ward away the evil spirits. That may get a smile from us Occidentals. But is it any funnier than our pre-nuptial round of teas and dinners and dances and gifts to the bridesmaids and cuff links to the ushers, to say nothing of white ribbons where the family sits and the wedding presents displayed on tables, and a ring and thimble and money hidden in the bride's cake, and a tossing of the bridal bouquet? Folde-rols and traditions are no funnier on one geographical spot than another.

MAMA-IN-LAW HIS BRIDE

Here's another mother-in-law story that is no joke. George Furish, 27, will wed his former mother-in-law as soon as she gets her divorce from her erstwhile son-in-law's 27, the bride 45. They say that their mutual affection utterly disproves the old mother-in-law joke. They may learn that it's the same old joke in another guise.

MOTHERS AND WAR

Two mothers of Civil War soldiers are on the Federal pension rolls. Mrs. Samantha Rorer Button of West Henry, Ill., is 96. Her boy was 16 and a private in the cavalry when he died. Samantha Farrer is over 100 and remembers seeing her son captured and dragged away to a Confederate prison.

Both these old women revel in the glory that was theirs in giving sons to their country. Our glorification of war has granted mothers of soldier sons this glory. Until all mothers prefer living sons to the glory that is their for dead ones, wars will go on. The job to make war a disgrace rather than a shining star will be made all the harder by gold star mothers who, having lost their own sons, prefer to believe it was worth while and not an utter waste.

MARIA'S PEEVE

Blonde Maria Jentz's peeve because France did not give her the decoration of the Legion of Honor and only gave her the decoration of "Officer of Public Instruction" makes one wonder why singers and actresses and other celebrities, generally lady ones, will do these things. Don't they realize that their petty outbursts make them lose much more with their public than the bestowal of any honor upon them could ever give?

REV. AND MRS. GRANT HERE FROM EVANSTON

Rev. and Mrs. Frederick Grant of Evanston enjoyed the week at Grand Detour. Rev. Grant, a former rector at St. Luke's is now Dean of the Western Theological Institute at Evanston. He and his wife attended church services in Dixon and later returned to Grand Detour.

DROVE TO MENDOTA TO MEET GUESTS

Mrs. Curtis Clark and Frank Rosbrook drove to Mendota today to meet Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wilcox of Los Angeles, Cal., who arrived today to be guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rosbrook. Mr. Wilcox is the brother of Mesdames Clark and Rosbrook.

GUESTS FROM CEDAR FALLS ARRIVED FOR VISIT

Mr. and Mrs. George Geertsen of Cedar Falls, Iowa, were week end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Cortright, of West Chamberlain street. They left this morning for Chicago.

KINGDOM-MT. UNION AID TO MEET

The Kingdom-Mt. Union Aid Society will hold an all day meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Scott Lowery, east of town.

Mr. Rodney Bryer

Miss Bertie Lou Ward

The marriage of Miss Bertie Lou Ward to Mr. Rodney Bryer will be solemnized Friday, June 29, at the home of the bride's parents.

The marriage promises to be one of the outstanding events of the present social season since both the bride and groom are prominent members of the younger set.

The groom is connected with the accounting department of J. B. Meeks and Sons and is regarded as one of the most promising of Wayville's business men.

The bride party has not yet been named, but it is rumored that Lila Marsh, Mr. Bryer's erstwhile fiancée, is planning to attend the ceremony.

Further details of the wedding will be printed in "Love for Two," Ruth Dewey Groves' newest serial which begins Friday, June 29 in the Dixon Evening Telegraph.

Annual Picnic of The Miller Families

Despite the continuous downpour of rain, the annual Miller picnic was held in the annex of the Assembly Park Hotel on Sunday, June 24, 1928, forty-four being present.

Following the cafeteria picnic dinner, a permanent organization was effected. Joseph A. Miller, a senior member of the Miller group present was elected president, and L. W. Miller, secretary-treasurer.

A message of cheer and good will from J. P. Miller of Marble Rock, Iowa, 89 years of age, was read by the president.

The fourth Sunday of June was designated as picnic day for 1929.

Those in attendance were:

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Jordan, Clinton, Ia.; Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Forsyth, Charles City, Ia.; Mr. and Mrs. Ar. Joyce, Westmore, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Thur. Jurd and daughters, Jean and H. H. Miller, Byron, Ill.; Mrs. Mary Rockwell and daughters, Carol, Camilla and Priscilla, Pecatonica, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fleming and daughters Doris, Joyce and Wanda, Shabbona, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Howland, DeKalb, Ill.; Miss Florence Gooch, Geneseo, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Miller and daughter, Elwyna, Dixon, Ill.

Sunshine Class Pleasant Meeting

The members of the Sunshine class of the St. Paul's Lutheran church held a well attended and enthusiastic meeting Thursday evening in the church parlors. All officers except two were present. Mrs. Coakley had charge of the Scripture lesson and Miss Mabel Kay led in prayer. The treasurer's report was read and proved most satisfactory from a financial standpoint.

The picnic for the July meeting was discussed and it was decided to accept the invitation of Mr. Brimblecome at Woosung and hold it there, with Mrs. Perkins in charge. The meeting closed with a "community sing" for half an hour, with Miss Grace Johnson at the piano. Each member chose her favorite song and all joined in the singing. This was followed by paper saws being passed to each one with a proverb and part of a Scripture quotation written thereon. This caused much merriment in finding the other half of the quotation on another saw. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mesdames Dora Fruin, Catherine Hill, Grace Stanley and Misses Ellen Nosworthy and Mabel Kay.

Worthington-Angell Wedding Announced

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Worthington, 297 Peoria avenue, announce the marriage of their younger daughter, Ruth, to James Angell, son of Mrs. Bell Angell of Sterling.

The wedding, a very impressive but simple ceremony, was solemnized at the home of intimate friends of the Worthingtons, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Becker, 615 Elgin Ave., Forest Park, Saturday evening at 7:30, in the presence of a few relatives and friends, by Rev. Audrey S. Moore, pastor of the Bethany Methodist church at Evanston, Ill. Rev. Moore was a former well beloved pastor of the Methodist church of this city. The Becker home was gay with flowers for the happy event, peonies predominating, and after the ceremony and the congratulations, light refreshments were served. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Russell Weiss of Austin, Ill.

Present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Worthington, parents of the bride; her sister, Miss Anna Marie Worthington and Leon Baxley of Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Becker, Forest Park; Miss Lou Becker and brother, Harry, of River Forest; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Weiss, Austin; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Thomas, Chicago.

The bride is a charming girl, a representative of one of the old Dixon families, and is vivacious and attractive. She has been teaching school in Sterling for the past four years and has made many friends during that time in Sterling and vicinity. Mr. Angell, son of Mrs. Bell Angell, of Sterling, is also a member of an old and highly respected family, and is an admirable and likeable young man. He is employed by Pearl Woods of Sterling. Mr. and Mrs. Angell expect to make their home at the Angell residence for the summer months, during the absence of his mother, who is visiting relatives in Iowa for the summer. Many friends of both young people will join in wishing them every happiness in their new life.

Girls' "Y" Camp At Bovey Springs

In spite of the rainy weather sunshine reigns in the Girls' Y Camp. Every girl is a real camper and with the splendid help of Miss Thompson, the recreational director, the girls are kept busy with all sorts of fun.

Greatly to our surprise, we had ten visitors in camp Sunday. They found the girls happy and cozy in their tents.

The director sends many thanks for the contributions sent in by Mrs. Withers, Mrs. Curran, Mrs. Nagle, Mrs. Trowbridge, Mr. Marth and Mr. Richardson. These gifts were greatly appreciated by all.

The girls are all optimistic and it is this that is helping to make the "Builders' Camp a success in spite of the elements.

Hammer and Saw

Editorial by Eleanor Clayton
A good many centuries ago, a great traveler said words to the effect: Now I am ready to leave this world for I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.

His course was a long, hard one. The life of a busy, ailing man. Nevertheless, he finished with a satisfied feeling that all was well. Throughout, he had played square, had kept faith with all people with whom he came in contact. But to me the biggest fact is that he finished the course. So many people drop out when the race seems hard. So many become side-tracked and forget the real issues.

There is a proverb which says that if we take care of the little things the big ones will take care of themselves. Likewise, if we finish the small games, the little tasks, the short races, it becomes easier to complete the great things in life. Then we can say with the old prophet: "When I begin I will also make an end."

A Trip to Camp

to visit their daughter Edna Sarah. They had a very exciting drive to camp, with old Dan the blame for everything. The old nag saw a large cornfield at his left when about two miles from camp, dragged poor Azariah and Hannah through a field, over many bumps, etc. Azariah, after much struggling led old Dan back to the road. The horse made good time the last two miles, doing it in two hours. When they arrived, not knowing where they stopped, for they were so tired that they lay back in the buggy, fast asleep.

However, as it happened, they had stopped in front of the archery target. In about five minutes, Azariah felt something in his head, and looking around found that an arrow had gone right through the side of the buggy's top. Azariah exploded with a lot of harsh words at the destroyers of their Sunday buggy, but to his surprise, he found the archer to be his little Edna Sarah. He cooled down, after a while, giving his little daughter a big, fatherly kiss on the cheek. After a very exciting time, Azariah and Hannah started out at five o'clock for Woosung, arriving home at about ten after much resting on the way. Hannah flopped on the couch while Azariah lay in the buggy all night. It was an extremely interesting trip for the Higgins family.

Short Interviews With Famous Women

"Experts in various lines of research are concluding that the long prevalent male sex is fast disappearing," Constance Lindsay Skinner, historian, recently elected Fellow of the American Geographical Society, whose first novel will appear soon, has stated.

"Natural history has familiarized us with the spectacle of lost, or disappearing, species. Witness the prehistoric dinosaur, the comets of the Renaissance and the World War cooties!"

"This information—that the male of the species is on the wane—may seem unimportant to Americans. For in our present social life, manhood scarcely functions."

"The early American male, the 'Hero-man' who became later the 'He-man' of the Western plains, is an extinct type now. Modern man runs for his commuting train. When he gets home he watches the woman of the house serve the meal and timidly calls her 'Mamma.'"

"The manner in which the awe-inspiring oaths of the frontier century have diminished to the butter-and-egg 'mama' plaintive 'Mamma' tells the decline of man."

"All this explains why women no longer need charm. Women always had the hard work of life to do but they didn't realize it. They needed charm as an additional asset to win their men. Now, with the departing masculine, it looks as if charm might be banished from the world, as an anachronism."

4-PRE-EMPTIVE BIDS.

When to make a pre-emptive bid and when not to do so is explained in the following illustrative hands:

Hearts—K Q X; spades—A K X; diamonds—none; clubs—A K J X X X. This is a very strong hand. It holds support for either a spade or a heart bid. There is no necessity of pre-empting, as there is nothing to fear. Clubs may not be the best game-going declaration. Encourage bidding on part of partner to determine best declaration. Encourage bidding on part of opponents, as you may collect large penalties. Bid one club.

Spades—A K Q X X X; hearts—K; diamonds—Q X; clubs—X X X. To pre-empt, bid three spades, to shut out a possible heart bid. If you were to bid one spade, it might encourage partner to show hearts, and you have no support for hearts.

Spades—X X; hearts—X X; diamonds—A Q X X X X; clubs—X X. This hand does not contain two quick tricks. Pass. Novices are tempted to bid on such holdings. These are dangerous, not because you may not make one or two diamonds, but because you may mislead your partner.

Spades—A K J X X X; hearts—none; diamonds—K Q X; clubs—X X X. This hand is bank in hearts. In all probability opponents hold great strength in hearts. Bid four spades to shut out all bidding. Hand is valueless for any other game-going declaration.

Spades—X; hearts—K Q J X X X; diamonds—A J X; clubs—X X. This hand is weak in spades, and in all probability strength in spades is with opponents. A bid of three hearts may shut out bidding. Bid four hearts.

Spades—X; hearts—X X; diamonds—A Q J X X X X; clubs—A X. This hand contains support for a spade bid. It may be more advisable to play it in spades. Some experts pre-empt when holding A K Q J X X, although suit does not contain seven cards. Bid one heart, as there is nothing to fear from opponents. DIXON'S CENTENNIAL—LET'S CELEBRATE.

Dixon is one hundred years old this year. It seems proper that we should fittingly observe our centennial and suggestions are in order.

In the year 1828 a half-breed named Joseph Ogee built a log cabin on the banks of the Rock River where Dixon now stands and established a ferry across the stream. The exact day and month of the establishment of Ogee's enterprise here is lacking, but we know that it was in 1828, just one hundred years ago. On Dec. 7, 1829, he was granted a license to keep this ferry by Jo Davies County, under whose jurisdiction this territory then was. In that same year a post office was established at the ferry and Postmaster Gay was our first P. M.

On April 11, 1830, Father John Dixon, with his wife and family of five children came to this spot, bought the half-breed's ferry and the place became known as Dixon's Ferry, and later, Dixon. In September of that year Father Dixon succeeded Mr. Gay as Postmaster, and in 1834 the government changed the name of the post office to Dixon's Ferry.

But the settlement that later became the city of Dixon had its birth on the day that Joseph Ogee cut the first log to start his cabin on the banks of the "Sinnissippi" and that was in 1828.

WHAT IS A PLAYGROUND?

What is a city playground, anyway? Is it just "a place for the children to play," serving no other purpose? Or is it a vital part of the city, exercising a far-reaching influence on apparently unrelated matters?

The Regional Plan Committee of New York, studying the problem, has concluded that the function of providing for public recreation is one of the city's most important tasks. If park and playground facilities are not made handy to the congested centers of population, crime increases, property values go down and, in the end there may even come an exodus from the city. A city's growth, prosperity and well-being are closely bound-up with the matter of recreation facilities.

It's a more important matter than we often realize. No city can devote too much attention to it.

OUR YOUNG DREAMS.

Patrick Hurley is 13 years old and lives in Detroit. If we're not mistaken, he is a young man who is going to make his mark in the world some day.

Patrick built a sailboat the other day. It was eight feet long and two feet wide, and highly rickety. He got up before dawn, left his father a note saying, "I am going to Alpena," and embarked on his 300-mile cruise.

By luck he didn't drown. His boat was swamped in Lake St. Clair, but he managed to cling to a buoy until rescued. He returned home quite undismayed.

Every boy dreams at some time of making a boat and going adventuring. Few actually do it. Young Patrick seems to be a lad with determination. The quality should carry him far.

A couple of weeks after a man is nominated as candidate for the presidency, he is notified of the honor. You'd think he'd almost find it out for himself in that time.

News from the political conventions has found quite a ready interest among women. It's nice to know what the politically-minded women are wearing.

What this country needs is a contest to see how long everybody can refrain from long distance contests.

President Coolidge sent a telegram to Herbert Hoover the other day telling him he had been nominated for "the most important position in the world." Cal must take that job seriously.

One of the survivors in a recent dance marathon in Chicago was in Mr. Pyle's race, too. Probably he was just spending his vacation in Chicago.

The novelist Zona Gale was married the other day to William Breeze. It must have been quite a tempestuous affair.

Standard colors for Holsteins were proposed at a convention of breeders in Milwaukee. Probably pretty soon you'll be reading "Milk from Colorful Cows."

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Marye, dear:

I suppose I was foolish to feel so upset about your taking a job as a model, particularly since Alan does not mind and since it amuses you so. My feeling I suppose is this: that if a married woman gives her job of homemaking into another, and goes out to work herself, it ought to be at something important—more important at least than what she is giving up.

And just showing clothes all day seems so trivial to me. And I can't help feeling that there are lots of girls in the city, who really need to support themselves, who should have these jobs, rather than two girls such as you and Miss Smith, who are amply provided for and are merely amusing themselves by working. One hears so much about unemployment and the difficult times girls have earning an honest living in cities that it is easy to understand why they resent this competition from women who do not have to consider wages, and who can, as you say, walk out on a job any time it becomes a bore.

If it causes you to appreciate your home more, and makes it possible for you to welcome a quiet evening, however I ought to make no objections. And I do not.

Tell Alan I am sending a box of preserves, all nicely labeled, for his particular benefit, and that he may do as he likes about sharing them. And I'm going to have more for you later on as the other berries come in season. I have so much time now that I really love to fuss with this sort of thing.

I think you may expect Florence back most any time, since she has about convinced her mother that life here is impossible for her. She wants to have a little apartment of her own, she says, where she can devote herself to the development of her career without the cramping influences of her family.

Have you written to her that you are modelling? I have said nothing to her about it. She is such a gossip, and people here will think it very strange that you are working. It will reflect on Alan. So I think it is best not to start any conjectures. They never would understand your attitude.

Are you planning to come home later in the summer? Everyone is anxious to see you and you will disappoint them dreadfully if you don't—to say nothing of how I shall miss you. Perhaps you would like to be here for the fair week—that will be the first of September. But any time that will suit you will be splendid for me.

Devotedly,
MOM.

Campaigns of Former Years

1924

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

The republican national convention of 1924 met at Cleveland, June 10, and nominated President Coolidge as its candidate on the first ballot. In choosing a vice presidential nominee, however, a situation arose which had never been faced before. The party selected Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, and he declined. Then it picked Charles Gates Dawes of the same state.

The democrats met in Madison Square Garden, New York, on June 24, in what became the longest convention ever held by any political party. William Gibbs McAdoo and Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York were leaders for the nomination, but neither could muster two-thirds of the delegates. Those pledged to favorite sons, including Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama and John W. Davis of West Virginia, held fast to their candidates. On the one hundred and third ballot Davis was nominated, and Charles W. Bryan, governor of Nebraska and brother of William Jennings Bryan, was made his running mate.

The republican ticket was victorious by a popular plurality over the democrats of nearly 7,000,000 votes, notwithstanding the candidacy on a progressive ticket of Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin. The electoral vote was Coolidge 382, Davis 136, LaFollette 13.

METROPOLIS, ILL. PLANS FOUR-DAY SESQUI HOLIDAY

To Honor Clark and Lewis Trail-Blazers of 150 Years Ago

Metropolis, Ill.—(AP)—On a summer day, 150 years ago, a gallant band of Virginians and backwoods-men, led by the daring Col. George Rogers Clark, trudged through the Morgan Bottoms a few miles north of Metropolis on their conquest of the Old Northwest.

This year, for four days, beginning June 28, Fort Massac State Park here will be the scene of a sesqui-centennial celebration, dedicated to the historic achievements of the trail blazers. Within the week following, similar commemorative exercises will be held at Cahokia and Chester.

Metropolis celebration will draw the attendance of several noted organizations, who will direct the four-day exercises. Opening on the twenty-eighth with home-coming and fraternal order programs, the services of the following three days will be directed by the Daughters of the American Revolution, the American Legion, Boy Scouts and singing societies of southern Illinois and western Kentucky.

History tells of Clark's daring expedition through Massac county.

"After much difficulty Clark succeeded in enlisting 150 Virginians and returning to Kentucky endeavoring to enlarge his numbers. He told them nothing of his daring plans and they readily enlisted thinking it was for the purpose of home protection.

"Clark then descended the Ohio to Corn Island expecting recruits. They arrived but discovering Clark's real purpose deserted him in great numbers. Full preparations were made at Corn Island for the campaign and on June 24, 1778, during the eclipse of the sun, set out on the long voyage.

"They continued their journey for four days, when at last they came to the mouth of the Tennessee river and landed on a small island which he called 'Barataria'. If this was the correct name it has been lost and today the island has such colloquial names as 'Tow Head Island'.

Clark's force of 153 men commanded by Captains John Montgomery, Joseph Bowman, Leonard Helm and William Harrod, secured the assistance of a party of hunters under the leadership of John Duff, an Englishman.

"During the evening of June 30, the entire party descended the Ohio and first stepped on Illinois soil at the mouth of Massac creek, which Clark called a 'gut or gully', and here hid his boats in the underbrush. Here he hoisted the newly-adopted banner of the United States.

"This was probably the first time the flag of the United States was ever unfurled so far in the west. However, it is possible that it was seen earlier in the year of 1778, when James Willing, a captain in the Continental army, made a cruise down the Ohio in an armed vessel.

"Clark skirted the entire boundary of southern Illinois, captured a number of traders and greatly alarmed the commandant at Kaskaskia. "A thousand miles from his base of supplies, with no chance of reinforcements and an unknown wilderness before him—then the Illinois country—it was enough to test the strength of any man, and such was Clark's problem when he first stepped on Illinois soil at Fort Massac."

Remaining overnight, Clark struck out again with his motley troop of Virginians and Kentuckians, clad in backskin and homespun, in a north-westerly direction. The party crossed the Morgan Bottoms a few miles north of Metropolis and after these lowlands were passed, they reached a hill at noon-day which is now known as Clark's Spur.

There his company paused for rest and then entered a dark gloomy cypress swamp which bordered the Cache creek. Crossing the small creek, they emerged from the lowlands and ascended the rock hill upon which Indian Point is now situated.

a voice in the disposition of the family abode, as also should the husband in case it is held by the wife.

"However, as applied to other real estate, this dower interest hangs over the husband's head like the sword of Damocles. He is never sure whether he can sell his real estate or not. Even when his wife joins in signing the agreement for sale, he cannot be sure that she will not exercise her power of veto when it comes to the final settlement. This same condition applies to the wife's interest, when she owns real estate that she may wish to sell.

"I hope that our representatives may be prevailed upon to repeal this old law, together with many others, which have either outlived their usefulness, or never were of any use in the first place. Let us put real estate transactions on the same plane as those in personal property."

He pointed to the fact that any piece of personal property belonging to the husband or wife may be freely sold by its owner without interference, but that the sale of real estate must entail the final agreement of both members of the family. "This brings about a discrimination in favor of the investment in personal property," he said, "that is working a hardship in the sale of real estate of any kind. I could cite many instances where the husband had signed an agreement for a warranty deed in order to convey real estate that he owned, only to find that his wife did not approve of the transaction and therefore refused to sign the deed."

Heart Disease is Taking Many Lives

Springfield, Ill., June 25—(AP)—Deaths from heart disease have increased so rapidly that that disease now outranks tuberculosis as a drain on human resources. Dr. Isaac A. Rawlings, state health director said today in his weekly health review.

Nearly 20 percent of the mortality he said, occurs among people less than forty years old. Dr. Rawlings regards this as the most serious phase of the growing seriousness of heart disease.

Heart disease in persons under forty, said Dr. Rawlings, usually is the result of some infection that has poisoned the circulatory system. Dr. Rawlings recommended preventive measures and good medical care.

THE KNYMITES

The monkeys kept on throwing fast. "Say, how long is this going to last?" cried Coppy, as he dodged a coconut that came his way. "We've surely started quite a fuss. I wonder why they throw at us. I wish that we could tell them that we're merely come to play."

Then Scouty said, "That would be grand, but, gee, they wouldn't understand. 'Bout all that we can do is just to wait until they stop. I see a great big rock nearby. I think we all had better try to gather underneath it. They can't hit us if we hop."

So, from behind big trees they ran. "Now, dodge around as best you can," cried Clowny, and the Tines reached the rock, all safe and sound. "Oh, gee, I'm tired," one Tiny said. "Twould do me good to rest my head." And soon the whole bunch took a nap upon the mossy ground.

Brave Coppy was the first to wake. He jumped, and cried, "For goodness sake, the monkeys still are in the tree. They simply will not leave. I guess that coming here was wrong. 'Cause we may have to stay so long that we will miss a lot of sights, and that will make us grieve."

"Now, wait a minute," Scouty cried. "I have a plan that might be tried." He then picked up some apples that had fallen from a tree. "I'll make those monkeys feel ashamed," said he. "I soon will have them trained. The bunch of you just stay back there, and leave it all to me."

Then, to the open Scouty went, and just a little while was spent in coaxing several monkeys to come down and have a treat. He held the apples in his hand. The monkeys thought they looked real grand. So, down they came and gathered round, and all began to eat.

(Clowny has fun with the monkeys in the next story.)

HEALTH-DIET ADVICE

Dr. McCoy, Los Angeles specialist, will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Telegraph. Enclosure stamped, addressed large envelope for reply.

OUR KIDNEYS

There are many poisonous substances in the body that would cause death if they were allowed to accumulate. Some of these are poisons that have gained entry from outside, but many are actually created by the normal body processes. Without organs for the purpose of eliminating these poisons or toxins, our lives would be snuffed out within a very short time. We have several of these protective organs which separate and eliminate the poisons from the blood and tissues. You have all heard of the kidneys and know something of their function, but I thought you would like an article explaining in simple language more about them. The kidneys are two bean-shaped organs fastened to the back wall of the abdominal cavity, on either side of the spinal column, just in front of the lowest ribs. They are imbedded in fatty tissue, and held in place by ligaments. Their function is to filter out waste and surplus material from the blood and yet retain the good food substances. The most common excretion is composed principally by urea, uric acid, oxalic acid, and water. They may sometimes excrete sugar and albumen which, if persistent, is an indication of some serious disease. These organs are composed chiefly of an enormous number of finely winding tubules which originate in little sacs through which flows a waste from the blood flowing through this little capillary escapes through its walls, and then through the inner walls of the sac, into the tubule and then all of these join together into a ureter which goes to the bladder. Drop by drop this waste is being continually separated from the blood by these millions of tubules.

When the kidneys are being continuously overworked, they may become weakened, and susceptible to disease. The kidneys should excrete about a little over three pints daily for an adult, but this range varies greatly with the amount of liquid consumed. The principal work of the kidneys is to eliminate protein waste products. There are a number of diseases of the kidneys, but the three you hear of most frequently are: inflammation of the kidneys, when they discharge albumen in the urine also called nephritis and Bright's Disease; stones in the kidney, when some of the products which are excreted become hardened; floating kidney, when it becomes loosened from its moorings and saunters around through abdominal regions where it has no business. I have prepared articles on all of these diseases, and I will be very glad to mail them to any of my readers who will send me a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The kidneys are often injured during acute illnesses or in the course of chronic diseases. Once they are badly damaged, the condition is serious and the patient should do everything in his power to avoid doing more injury to them. Alcohol is very hard on the kidneys, as is turpentine, mercury, and carbolic acid. Almost any condition where there is an extensive destruction of the skin, such as burns, skin diseases, and accidents, is apt to bring on an acute kidney disorder. This shows how the health of one important eliminating organ may affect the health of another.

FOOD MINERALS (Part I)

Mineral elements have been neglected by the older school of dietitians, but recent investigations have proven that though only used in small quantities, mineral elements are essential to life itself. Thinking that it might be interesting to my readers, I have decided to give a list of these elements and their uses, together with the foods which contain the largest amounts of each.

Some of these minerals, as they are found in the chemical shop, are exceedingly poisonous, but after they have been absorbed and made use of by plants, some changes take place in their structure and they become useful elements. While every natural, unrefined food contains all of these elements in some proportion, it is convenient for dietetic purposes to group those together which are richest in special elements. It would be well to clip out this and the following article for reference.

Phosphorus is a stimulator of growth and activity. This tendency must be curbed by the presence of sulphur and alkaline elements or there will be a tendency to tumors, irritability, and bony exudates. Some phosphorus is essential to the thinking processes. This does not mean that you can eat phosphorus and develop an enormous brain any more than eating meat will develop enormous muscles. Only the actual work of thinking can make the brain use phosphorus. The foods which are richest in phosphorus are kale, bran, liver, truffles, radishes, pumpkin, pike, cucumbers, cheese, Swiss chard, lettuce and egg yolk.

SULPHUR is an intestinal antiseptic, and it gives the skin and hair a luxuriant pliability. It acts as a brake or damper to the oxidation of phosphorus in the body and in this way preserves the nervous vitality. The absence of sulphur leads to irritability, nervousness, insanity, tumors and some skin disorders. The foods which are richest in sulphur are watercress, kale, Brussels sprouts, horse radish, spinach, raspberries, string beans, cabbage, and turnips.

SILICON is used in the formation of the muscles, blood, nerves, skin, hair and nails. It forms a sort of tissue framework, and a lack of it causes falling hair, brittle nails, softened teeth and possibly diabetes. Since silicon is found mostly in the skins of fruits and the bran of cereals, one may deprive one's self of this valuable element by discarding these parts. Silicon is found in asparagus, cucumbers, lettuce, bean, dandelion, parsnips, fruit skins, strawberries and beets.

CHLORINE increased the body's resistance to tissue parasites and is necessary for the digestion and assimilation of protein. A lack of it may result in uremic poisoning and indigestion. It is found in quantities in oysters, cheese, lettuce, egg whites, spinach, celery, parsnips, cabbage, radishes and whey.

IODINE is used by the thyroid gland to form thyroxin which regulates body metabolism. The medicated iodine treatment is based upon the fact that crude iodine is a gland atrophier. The danger of its administration is what an atrophy of other body glands may result. Many cases of sterility can be traced to this. By taking iodine as it is found in food, this danger is averted. The foods richest in iodine are: grey shrimp, crab, lobster, herring, oysters, carrots, green lima, pineapple, mushrooms and kelp.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Mrs. P. writes: "Please advise me what to do to help my mother who is seventy-seven years old. The doctors say it is just old age, but she is failing so fast. I feel something could be done to give her back her strength, at least so she could walk around the house unsupported. She has no fever, but very little appetite and oftentimes would not eat anything unless almost forced to do so."

ANSWER: Let your mother have her way about not eating much. Just prepare the proper kinds of food for her and she will eat enough if she is really hungry. If she follows your urging to eat when she is not hungry, you will only be forcing her to do something which will shorten her life.

QUESTION: E. S. J. asks: "What kind of vegetables, meats, fruits and pastries can one eat who has ulcer of the stomach and intestinal gas? Will the same diet correct constipation?"

ANSWER: If you really have an ulcer of the stomach, milk is the only food you should be using until all signs of the ulcer disappear. Then your diet should consist of well balanced combinations such as I recommend in my weekly health menus. The same kind of foods properly used will correct constipation.

QUESTION: Ernest asks: "Will you tell me the cause of a cracking then I move my head and neck, and how to cure it?"

ANSWER: The cracking noise is caused by ligaments slipping back into their proper places. This is because the ligaments are either too short or too long. They become short because of the contraction of muscles, and too long because of straining, such as holding the head in a faulty position. Persistent exercises of the neck muscles will correct the trouble.

QUESTION: B. V. G. asks: "What causes so much acid in my mouth as to cause my teeth to be sore under the edge of the gums. Am very constipated. What can I do to remedy these conditions?"

ANSWER: Improper diet is the cause of pyorrhea, trench mouth, or any other similar disorder which would make your teeth sore under the gums. Go to a good dentist and have your teeth treated and scaled. At the same time, change your diet and overcome constipation by taking plenty of exercise, using more greens, and following the menus I give every week in this column.

QUESTION: Mother-of-five writes: "I wish you would please make some suggestions for a lunch to be carried to work by a young girl."

ANSWER: A pint of milk with any one acid fruit makes a good lunch; or, if you will provide her with a thermos bottle, she can carry with her any of the cooked non-starchy vegetables which were prepared the evening before and re-heated the next morning. With these warm vegetables include one or more of the ray salad ones, such as celery, lettuce, etc., wrapped in a damp cloth.

QUESTION: R. J. asks: "Will you please state the method of diet treatment for overcoming the liquor habit?"

ANSWER: A short fruit fast for a few days will positively eliminate any abnormal craving for liquor. If one wishes to stop drinking alcoholic intoxicants he will find it very easy to control himself after the cleansing effect of a fruit fast.

QUESTION: John asks: "When going in swimming how long should one stay in the water?"

ANSWER: About twenty to thirty-five minutes.

The Call of the Out-Doors

DIGGING FISH

A party of automobile tourists stopped beside a Texas river recently. Nearby was a man furiously digging a hole in the ground a few yards from the river. The tourists, intrigued, watched him. One finally asked, "What are you doing?"

"Fishing," The man kept on digging.

The inquirer felt his ire rising. He was not to be trifled with. "Don't get too fresh!" he admonished. "I meant no harm."

The digger stopped, smiled. "I'm fishing," he repeated. "In a minute I'll show you a walloping big catfish." He resumed work.

True to his word, he presently jumped down into the hole, emerged with a twenty eight pound catfish, very much alive.

He explained it all. Catfish dig caves in the soft ground of the river banks, extending sometimes to considerable distances. These are enlargements of the nests made by the parent fish. They serve as refuges and resting places for monster catfish. How did he know where to dig? Well, that was easy. He knew where and how the catfish made their caves. For years he had caught the family fish supply by diving under water, finding the entrance to a cave, dragging the fish out.

for a man to swim into. That meant big fish. So he would swim in, or rather crawl in, to the end of it. He could grab the smaller residents as they dashed past him, thrusting them into a burlap sack. And the big ones he would battle "hand to hand," finally grab them by the gills. And the catfish, he said, could fight. They bit and plunged and slapped and bit again. Perhaps this was why, nowadays, he preferred to do his fishing on dry land. Didn't have to hold his breath for three minutes at a time. Just walked along the bank until he spotted the opening to a den, then got out the trusty spade and attacked the fish from above.

OBITUARY

RITA LUCILLE BARNES

(Contributed)

Amboy—One of the saddest of recent incidents occurred when Rita Lucille, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Barnes, passed away Sunday morning at the Angear hospital, following a two week's illness. She had always been in good health, and being stricken so suddenly ill, which proved fatal, was a severe shock to her parents, relatives and friends.

Everything that loving hands could do was done, but it was beyond human aid. The little one's system was so overpowered by poison that it was unable to overcome the flu-infection and auto-intoxication which resulted.

Rita was an attractive child and had a very good disposition. She made friends easily and was loved by all who knew her. She was a member of the cradle roll of the First Baptist church and had practiced her parts to be taken in the Children's day program the day before she was taken ill.

Rita Lucille Barnes was born October 2, 1925 and passed away June 17, 1928 at the age of 2 years, eight months and 15 days. She leaves to mourn her loss, her parents, a brother, Earl, her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Koester and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Barnes, and several aunts, uncles, cousins, besides a host of friends.

The funeral was held Tuesday at 1:30 o'clock at the home and at 2 o'clock at the Baptist church. Rev. Kerr officiating, assisted by Rev. C. H. Diercks of the Methodist church. Two songs, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "I Think When I Read

Promoting Human Welfare

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana), like many another American business institution, organized primarily for profit, is an agency for human welfare.

Here in America we have found a fundamental and constructive way of adding to human happiness. Enlightened business has been the instrument by which better conditions for working and living have been created.

Science in cooperation with business has made its enormous contributions to human comfort and pleasure. Never in the history of the world has the "average man" known such a standard of living as he enjoys today in America.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is one of the business institutions that has helped to bring this about.

Efficient methods, scientific research, economical production on a vast scale, the rigid elimination of waste enable this Company to produce from crude oil the utmost in useful commodities of service to man.

Increasing costs of production have been so effectively offset by increasing efficiency of operation, that prices of petroleum products have maintained a lower level than any other commodity in general use.

Standard Oil Company (Indiana) products may be secured at frequent intervals at reasonable prices anywhere within ten Middle Western states.

In this business of rendering the public useful service, of making its dependable products available to everyone everywhere in the Middle West, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) gives employment to 26,558 people.

The welfare of its employees is a chief concern of this Company. Numerous measures instituted for their benefit assure them of their Company's interest and cooperation at all times—of encouragement in prosperity—of help in time of trouble.

They work together effectively with unity of purpose and a common loyalty. Each individual realizes that his opportunities are limited only by his ability, ambition and effort. He always is conscious that he is a part of an organization in which human relationships are valued.

The work of this Company represents a tremendous investment of human effort—a direct investment of the part of 26,558 employees—an indirect investment of effort on the part of 56,962 shareholders who for the most part have personally earned and saved the money paid for stock. These shareholders come from all walks of life and not one owns more than 5 1/4% of the total.

In the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) this human effort—aided by science and mechanical power—has been made to yield maximum returns in the satisfying of man's wants.

SMITH'S CHANCE ON FIRST BALLOT GROWING Apace

Delegates Ready to Open Convention Tomorrow
at Noon

BY BYRON PRICE

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Dixon, June 25—(AP)—Winding up in silence one of the more-convention campaigns of the year, the supporters of Governor Smith stood today in the pre-convention position of having all but captured in advance the democratic National Convention, which opens tomorrow, and the presidential nomination which goes with it.

As arriving delegates swelled by hundreds the waiting phalanx behind the New Yorkers, it became apparent even to his still defiant enemies that he was on the very threshold of definite victory. The boldest estimate of the minority strength against him left him within less than a vote of the nomination.

For many so situated ever has failed of a quick and decisive triumph.

Talk of Running Mate

Not satisfied were his followers that any of them were talking more of a running mate for Smith than of first place on the ticket. Of the score of names brought into the east-whirling pre-convention gossip that of Evans Woolen, Indiana's favorite son, found at once a place of special eminence. Senator Robinson of Arkansas was among the others mentioned.

In the final hour before convention day, prohibition became more than ever the center of disagreements as remained for the big party convalescence and its committees to iron out.

Senator Reed of Missouri, who stumped many states against the quiet Smith movement, started the excitement by firing off a statement declaring the Eighteenth amendment must stand until a better method is found for dealing with the situation.

Called a wet many times by prohibition leaders, the Missouriian's utterance was embraced immediately by these leaders, and it appeared likely that he might have attracted to his slender column of delegate strength some anti-Smith delegates who otherwise would have voted for others.

Drys Encouraged

Just how his was to affect the final balance, or at what point it was intended to cut into the Smith majority was not apparent. But the Reed statement greatly encouraged the drys, and set them to work all over again under the leadership of Daniel C. Roper of North Carolina, in an attempt to organize a bloc sufficient to veto Smith's nomination and write into the platform the kind of ultra-dry plank they want.

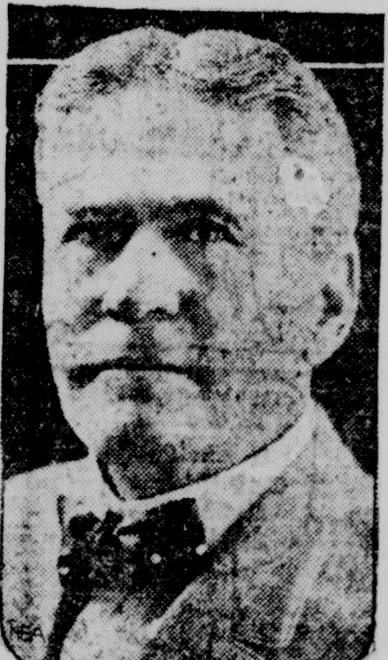

Smith headquarters said nothing. Some of the lesser Smith lieutenants, however, passed the word around that, even while Reed was preparing his statement, and Roper was gathering his band of drys, there had been band wagon accessions to Smith in such numbers that a first ballot nomination could be accomplished almost without a struggle, if it were desired. The presidential balloting will not be reached before Thursday, and possibly Friday.

Program Not Complete

The convention program is not yet complete, but leaders are considering a plan that would confine the daylight sessions within the briefest possible limits, and leave the real work of the convention to be done at night. It is possible that when the 1,100 delegates come together at noon tomorrow, they will separate again within a few minutes, after having disposed of necessary preliminaries only. That plan would postpone the keynote speech until a Tuesday evening session.

Sam Houston Hall, the square wooden super-pavilion built specially for the occasion and christened yesterday by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, was all dressed and waiting today for the mammoth show that is to be heard by millions and seen by more than 16,000. In spite of the south Texas heat hundreds of the new arrivals found energy to troop the half mile or more repairing the hall from the hotel section of Houston so that they might look on with curious anticipation at a final drill of the brigade of doorkeepers and ushers.

Bets on Life

Looks healthy enough, doesn't he? W. W. Watson, Salina, Kan., capitalist, says he doesn't bet. He has just completed a deal with an insurance company whereby he pays $100,000 for an income of $1500 a month for the rest of his life. Mr. Watson says he expects to live ten years more, in which event he will get back twice what he paid in. He is 79, his father lived to be 90, his mother 88, and his grandparents into the 80's and 90's.

"One-Eyed Connolly" Fails

One-Eyed Connolly, famous gate crasher of the generation, failed in his first attempt to break into the Democratic convention hall in Houston. Head Doorkeeper Barnes is bidding him a fond farewell, while State Policeman Andy Anders is escorting him away from temptation.

"Win With Reed" Their Cry

"Win With Reed," is the cry of Senator Jim Reed's supporters at Houston. Here are three who are urging the Missouri senator's nomination before the convention in Houston. Above are Mrs. Genevieve Clark Thompson, daughter of Champ Clark and a Missouri delegate, and Ed S. Villmore of Kansas City, in charge of Reed's Houston headquarters. Inset is James M. Thompson, New Orleans' publisher.

New Rates on Postage Will be Effective July 1

Postmaster John E. Moyer today issued the following statement concerning new rates on postage which will become effective July 1:

Some very important changes will take effect on the above date, which patrons will welcome, first the rates of private mailing or post cards will be reduced to 1 cent. Transient second class matter will be 1 cent for each 2 ounces or fraction. This applies to private mailing of newspapers regardless of weight or distance.

Another item which should receive special consideration is the new ruling on first class matter with deficient postage. This will have a tendency to correct one very bad evil, where some patrons have habitually been sending out short paid first class matter, perhaps not realizing the great amount of additional labor which the dispatch clerk is called on to do, in weighing and rating up such matter, thereby slowing up the work very materially. Ask window clerk for information.

New rates on "Special Delivery" will be 10 cents for letters or parcels weighing less than 8 ounces. From 8 ounces to 2 pounds 15 cents, from 2 pounds to 10 pounds 25 cents, and anything weighing more than 10 pounds 35 cents.

"Special Mailing Stamps" will be in denominations of 10-15 and 20 cents. Any parcel weighing less than 2 pounds will require 10 cents, 2 pounds and not more than 10 pounds will be 15 cents and any amount over 10 pounds will be 20 cents. This is an exceptional feature, and with the reduction of rates for such service, should be taken advantage of, for such parcels will receive the same expeditious handling as is accorded first class mail. In this connection, however, there should be no confusion between this feature of the service, and "Special Delivery," for "Special Delivery" means the immediate delivery of such matter soon as received into the office. In the case of "Special Handling," the same delivery as first class mail.

Rates on Parcel Post are as follows: Within local zone, 7 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional 2 pounds.

Within First and Second zone, 7 cents for first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

Within Third zone, 8 cents for first pound and 2 cents for each additional pound.

Within Fourth zone, 8 cents for first pound and 4 cents for each additional pound.

Within Fifth zone, 9 cents for first

THREE ILLINOIS MEN MENTIONED FOR SECOND POST

Rainey, J. Ham and Stevenson are Talked by Democrats

BY WALTER T. BROWN,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Aboard the Illinois Democratic Special Enroute to Houston, Little Rock, Ark., June 25—(AP)—Illinois will enter the Democratic National Convention with three potential candidates for the Vice Presidential nomination, Henry T. Rainey of Carrollton, Lewis G. Stevenson of Bloomington, and James Hamilton Lewis of Chicago. Rainey served twelve terms in Congress. He has declared for an incorporation in the party platform endorsement of the equalization fee principle, the keystone of the twice-vetoed McNary-Haugen farm relief bill. Stevenson was the son of Adlai Stevenson who was Vice President when Grover Cleveland sat in the Chief Executive's chair. Lewis formerly was a United States Senator from Illinois, one of the two Democrats who have been so honored since the Civil War.

One of the men who brought Rainey's name sharply to the front, Vincent Y. Dallman, editor of the Springfield, Illinois State Register, joined the delegation abroad the special yesterday afternoon at Springfield. Although not a delegate his opinion on party affairs was sought by delegates on the train. Normal L. Jones of Carrollton, and George A. Cooke of Chicago, delegates-at-large, agreed with him that the farmers should be promised some specific aid.

Strong in Central Illinois.

Allen T. Lucas, Champaign, a delegate from the twentieth district, who also joined the party at Springfield, was busy advancing the name of Rainey. He said he had found in central Illinois and elsewhere in the farm belt a pronounced sentiment for the former Congressman "Smith and Rainey. That's the ticket to win," declared Lucas. Lucas is confident that the New York Governor can be a candidate, and he believes that the feat Herbert Hoover, the Republican farm states will flock to Smith to express disapproval of the Aepublican nominee and the party's farm plank.

While the Illinois special was in the St. Louis yards last night, the William Kenney Special from New York bearing the wife of the New York Governor and other members of the Smith family arrived in the Missouri City. Martin J. O'Brien, head of the Illinois delegation, went aboard to pay his respects. Kenney is a wealthy New York contractor.

At Bismarck, Minn., center of a Democratic stronghold, the Illinois Special's first stop out of St. Louis, a crowd greeted the train. The Illinois delegation was cheered. So was Al Smith. The crowd, however, had gathered chiefly to see Mrs. Smith, many of the gathering saying they would wait until midnight to get a glimpse of the Governor's wife.

The Kenney train was just behind the Illinois Special. They were the last two of thirteen convention specials that passed through Bismarck during the past two days.

The Illinois delegation will caucus tonight shortly after the special reaches Houston. George Brennan undoubtedly will be re-elected National Committeeman and chairman of the convention delegation. Michael Loe is slated for the resolutions committee, and Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey of Chicago is said to have the inside track for the National Committeewoman's post.

Attending physicians held little hope of Cooley's recovery. He was held in bed by straps, due to his delirious condition.

The party, returning from a drive, apparently did not see the crack limited as it sped along, partly due, probably, to a brick building that obscured vision at the point of "dead man's crossing."

No Watchman.

Investigators were unable to agree as to the speed of the train, nor fix blame for the crash. A coroner's probe, however, revealed no watchman was on duty at the time of the accident.

Railroad employees near the scene of the accident declared that the train, traveling 15 miles per hour, had been struck by the car. Condition of the car, demolished by the impact, indicated that a portion had been struck by the train. Jewelry, clothes, money, and parts of the wreck were strewn along the right of way a distance of 150 feet, the space required to stop the train.

Four witnesses testified that the train was running at a speed of 40 miles an hour. The investigation is to continue today. Funeral services for Miss Irwin are to be held tomorrow. She is survived by her mother and father, two sisters and four brothers. Services for Miss Saner, daughter of Joseph A. Saner, will also be held tomorrow. Arrangements for James have not yet been announced.

Tabulation of traffic deaths in Sangamon county for 1928, have reached a total of 22 of which 12 were grade crossing fatalities.

LAST MEMBER OF CHENEY BATTERY IS LAID TO REST

Taps Were Sounded for George C. Loveland
this Afternoon

(Contributed)

Taps were sounded this afternoon for the last member of Cheney's Battery, Battery F, First Illinois Light artillery, when George C. Loveland was laid to rest in Oakwood cemetery amidst the scenes of his early childhood and the people he loved so well.

Mr. Loveland was born on St. Valentine's day, 1847 in Dixon. When a child of four years, he lost his father who had in 1851 just finished and moved into their new home that still stands next to the home occupied by Mr. Loveland at the time of his demise. From that early loss developed his desire to help those who earnestly tried to help themselves and his boyhood recollections of Dixon intensified his love for his home town and willing to respond to any call for its progress and development. When a mere boy in the high school at the age of 16 he heard his country's call to arms and enlisted in the Union army and during those long years of service in the Civil war experienced all the privations and hardships of a private soldier.

On returning to civil life he engaged in the mercantile business enjoying its keen activities, its competitions and the pleasant intercourse with people in every walk of life. Despite an unusually active and busy life he always found time for recreation which, with his beloved wife as companion, he enjoyed in the way of travel in foreign lands and studying and observing closely the different countries and peoples, thereby in a way completing his educational studies so seriously interfered with by his country's call to arms.

In later years Mr. Loveland entered the real estate, loan and insurance business in Dixon, forming a co-partnership with Frank E. Stittley, now deceased, which was successful from the beginning and he later retired disposing of his interests to the F. X. Newcomer Company, who conduct the business along the same lines and in the same location.

Opened New Division

In 1888 he sold land to the Anglo-Swiss Condensed Milk Company on which the present Borden condensing plant now stands. He platted and developed Loveland Place, a suburb of the city of Dixon where he spent much time and energy. In one year he planted 1,200 trees which have now grown into beautiful large shade trees. He built many houses which he sold on small monthly payments and at a low interest rate, in this way helping those of small means who wished to own their own homes.

He furnished funds for the erection of Loveland school in Loveland Place, the bonds thereof to be donated to the school district at Mrs. Loveland's death. He always lent his time and assistance in locating permanent business institutions such as the Henderson Shoe Company, now the Brown Shoe Company, and the Dixon Power & Lighting Company, now a part of the Illinois Northern Utilities Company.

Through his last years of invalidism he never lost courage, never grow despondent and always counted his many blessings. His greatest suffering was failing strength, his heart seeming to tire quickly but through it all he carried on his personal business affairs and for only a few weeks did he accept help to transcribe his dictation. In his practical way he lived and demonstrated his high appreciation of the best and most enduring things of life.

Dedicate Monument to Golconda Woman

Golconda, Ill.—(AP)—A huge native boulder of sand stone quarried from a bluff near the city which she founded has been placed in the Pope county circuit court house yard here, dedicated to Sarah Lusk, who a century and a quarter years ago came here to make her home.

The memorial weighs six tons. On the stone, a bronze tablet bears a simple inscription to the city's founder.

Formal dedication and unveiling exercises are to be held later in the year. Efforts are being made to secure a descendant of Sarah Lusk to officiate at the unveiling of the tablet.

The exact date of her death is not known, but records of her business affairs tell that she lived to be very old.

She was the daughter of James McElwain, of Union district, South Carolina. He had a Revolutionary record in the cavalry under General Sumpter, and was a wealthy plantation owner.

Pioneering her way across the mountains to Kentucky in 1796, she first settled at Cave Springs in that state. Major Lusk, her husband, died in 1800 and soon after, accompanied by her son and a few negro slaves, she turned northward to Illinois. At the mouth of Lusk Creek on a plat, then named Sarahville, she built her home.

The town was received in 1816, documents in the Pope county circuit court house says. Soon after, the Illinois country was opened to settlement and land grants given to soldiers stimulated immigration.

The flood of home seekers caused her to establish a ferry across the creek, the first one in the state. Tradition says that she did so at the point of a rifle. County history tells that she carried General William Henry Harrison safely across the river onetime and having revealed to him her troubles with Indians, he helped to establish protection for her.

She was later postmistress at Sarahville and married Thomas Ferguson who was then county judge of Pope county. Shortly afterward the settlement changed its name to Golconda.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"CHRISTIAN SCIENCE" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, June 24.

The Golden Text was from Isaiah 54:13, "All thy children shall be taught of the Lord; and great shall be the peace of thy children."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price. Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness" (Isaiah 55:1, 2).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "In divine Science, where prayers are mental, all may avail themselves of God as a very present help in trouble. Love is impartial and universal in its adaptation and bestowals" (p. 12).

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

VIRGINIA BREWSTER is in love with an artist, NATHANIEL DANN, but she is tricked into promising to marry FREDERICK DEAN in one year if she fails to earn $100,000 that he alleges her father cheated him out of. BUT-WATER had lost his fortune before his death and VIRGINIA is left destitute.

She pawns some of her jewelry
and OLIVER CUTTER promises to invest the money for her. She seeks success, but success, she discovers that DEAN is having her watched, and that he bribed
the agency not to give her work.
OLIVER gains her confidence and shows her attentions which NIEL resents, but then she does not like the familiarity with which his model, CHIRI, treats him.

VIRGINIA finally obtains a position as an artist. Shortly after she is charged by CUTTER's wife with trying to alienate his affections.

She appeals to him to explain,
and demands an accounting of her movements. Then CUTTER confesses that he has not made a penny for her, but that he will give it to her if she will go away with him.

She denounces him and leaves his office. Her company offers to send her on a voyage as ship hostess. She goes to the studio to ask NIEL's advice, but the presence of CHIRI there spoils
the evening.

The break between the lovers
is further widened by NIEL's doubt of her after receiving a letter from DEAN setting forth the CUTTER charges and saying that VIRGINIA was merely dangling him on her line while she sought for money. She suffers in silence, but a ray of hope comes from reading her father's diary.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLII

NATHANIEL maintained a strict silence in regard to Virginia's forthcoming voyage. He was convinced that she did not dread the separation. On the contrary he believed that she looked forward to the cruise as though it were a honeymoon trip—with a millionaire husband, he reflected bitterly.

Virginia's own manner was partly responsible for his opinion. She was eager, breathlessly eager, and whenever she spoke of it her eyes held a light that chilled Nathaniel with its clearly apparent anticipation.

"Guess you like the tropics," he said once, and Virginia started at the acrimonious quality of his voice. She gave him a searching look in an effort to see if there was anything in his face to justify her in hoping that he opposed her sailing.

But the mask she had come to know and apprehend had settled over his features and she could gain no inkling of his true feelings from his expression.

She believed he was indifferent.
They were hopelessly at cross pursues with each other, misjudging, misunderstanding, both playing a part.

But they held on, each doing enough, showing enough affection, to avert a complete rupture. They dined together as formerly but parted soon afterward. There was no more discussion of money, of Oliver, or of their own future.

The thought that Virginia's coming trip would be an answer to all the things was uppermost in the minds of both. There was no need to talk about the past.

Virginia knew that her fate would be definitely settled before her return as far as Frederick Dean was concerned in it, and Nathaniel thought that it would at-ford Virginia an opportunity to break off with him without a fuss
if that was what she wanted.

It was a turning point in their lives, they knew, and they approached it with white-lipped pain
when there was no one to observe its effect.

The steel of pride kept a mock smile on their faces when they were together and neither guessed what the other was suffering.

Virginia's boat sailed at noon
one bleak day in November and Nathaniel was not present to bid her farewell. He had purposely gone out of town to avoid this moment. To Virginia it was a gesture of callousness.

But that night, after she had done her best to be an ideal hostess,
she admitted in a moaning whisper to her pillow that she couldn't have endured the parting if Niel had come to the boat.

She spent a sleepless night and appeared on deck the next morning looking pale and exhausted. There were few to comment upon her appearance, however, and those who did take notice accounted it a result of the gale they had run into.

Virginia received their chaffing good naturedly and permitted them to believe she had suffered from seasickness.

She was very busy that morning,
conscientiously trying to be faithful to her duties. As so many of her "guests" were under the influence of mal de mer she devoted much of her time to visiting the staterooms and ordering clipped beef and crackers with ginger ale, or champagne for those who preferred it.

The deck steward came to her to organize a shuffleboard tournament and the swimming pool attendants wanted ideas for the races they were scheduled to arrange.

A group of hardy husbands thought she ought to be around when the 10 o'clock bouillon was served on deck, and the dining room steward wanted her help with the flowers.

Every steward and stewardess of the ship turned to her for instructions whether or not it lay in her line of duty to advise and assist them.

They were all under orders and a promise of a bonus to make the cruise a memorable one and they knew Virginia Brewster's background and that she represented
the standard of hospitality the Blue Capella wished to establish on the Agena.

There was little time for Virginia to think of her own troubles.
For as she began to make acquaintances among the passengers

she found that not a few of them
expected to make her a repository for tales of woe that they considered very dreadful but which caused Virginia to smile.

Trouble with servants! Trouble with obesity! Trouble with the sources of supply and what vile stuff it was when you got it!

Virginia listened politely but always got away as soon as she could. She was grateful at these times for her many and varied duties that afforded her pretexts for excusing herself.

By the time they reached Cuba
and steamed into the historic harbor of Havana she had recovered from the first pain of Nathaniel's failure to bid her bon voyage. Her chief emotion now was one of agonized suspense. Would she find "Oddly" Leigh? And if she did would he help her?

It set her frantic when some of the passengers remarked that they wished the Agena would stay in the harbor a few days longer than the itinerary called for and spoke of asking the captain to make the change.

Haiti would be their next stop.
Any unnecessary delay in getting there would be unbearable for Virginia. Her limit of endurance was already reached by the extra demands made upon her time and strength while they were in Havana.

On the last night in port there was a roof dinner given to the captain. The guest of honor showed a decided disposition to monopolize the attentions of the ship's hostess and so Virginia found herself compelled to dance with an old seadog whose steps might have been perfect on a heavy deck but impossible to follow
on a dance floor.

She was sure it pleased certain of the wives to see her so disposed of and accordingly made no effort to induce him to choose another partner. It was his night and he knew it.

But it filled her heart with sadness to be whirling around in his arms under the low-hung moon and brilliant stars of a land that was fashioned for romance.

If only she could close her eyes and imagine she was dancing with Niel! But when she tried it she promptly got her toes stepped on
and the illusion, if it had existed,
was instantly dispelled.

It was a very gay crowd, except for those who had walked too much in the tropical sun and drunk too much beer at the Tropical Gardens.

The roof was a garden of palms and flowers and the delicately colored buildings of the city below stretched out to a moon-shimmering sea like a water color painting.

The beautiful evening dresses
the women wore and the white dress suits the men had donned were in perfect harmony with the scene, but Virginia wished she could stand a moment at the parapet and be alone with the spirit of beauty that

GREAT GEORGIAN PRAISES FARRELL FOR BEATING HIM

Jones Shows His Real Sportsmanship in His Defeat

BY ALAN J. GOULD

Associated Press Sports Editor

Chicago, June 25—(AP)—Johnny Farrell, newly crowned open golf champion of the United States at the sprightly age of 27, steps forth today to survey his kingdom, reap the $50,000 reward that goes with it and take his place as the third figure in the great triumvirate of shotmakers America has had.

The slim young Irishman with the contagious smile and the fancy sweaters beat the master marksman of this trio yesterday, Bobby Jones, king of the amateurs, in a spectacular 36 hole playoff for the championship, 143 to 144. He outstroked the other, debonaire Walter Hagen the day before in the final half of the 72 hole competition that left him and Jones deadlocked at 294 strokes each with Hagen in a tie for fourth at 296.

Thus out of the battle over the rugged No. 4 links of the famous Olympia Fields layout, Farrell sealed the heights he had tried and failed to reach eight previous times. From what seemed a hopeless chase after his first 36 holes, when he slipped seven strokes behind the great Georgian, Jones, the clean cut New Yorker staged a sensational comeback to gain a tie as Bobby slipped and skidded on his final round. With the big chance before him in the play off, Farrell met the final test of championship caliber.

There is glory and fame enough for Johnny in beating Jones but there is a double distinction for him in the way he accomplished it.

Jones' Great Finish.
Farrell, a single stroke to the good, kept this advantage to win the championship in spite of one of the most brilliantly courageous thrusts he has met from any rival. Jones, on the last two holes, shot two successive birdies, but could not break down Farrell's or gain a single stroke.

Two of the greatest mashie shots that have ever been seen, under pressure, in championship competition, followed by two deadly putts, enabled Farrell to beat back the challenge of the Georgian, who has proved himself the world's greatest shot maker on more than one occasion.

Farrell laid the first of these iron dead to the seventeenth pin, with a two-foot putt for a birdie three which he made good after Jones had sunk a desperate 20-foot-er. Johnny fired the second of these decisive shots from the rough, some 75 yards from the long final hole, leaving himself an eight-foot putt that he made to win the title as Jones' ball rested nearby, for another certain birdie.

Grandchildren of those thousands who saw that thrilling finish will be told of the epic battle between two of the game's shot making giants and the struggle they waged right down to the finish.

Big Three of Golf.
The fashion in which Farrell came through to succeed Tommy Armour, the Black Scot, as the open champion leaves no doubt of his right to Join Jones, still the amateur king of them all, and Hagen, the British Open title holder, as the big three of American golf. These three sit astride the royal and ancient kingdom. For Farrell there is national championship honor for the first time after years of triumph in lesser fields, including eight sectional open tournament triumphs within the last year alone. Of Jones, even in defeat, there remains no doubt he keeps his place in the van of the par-shooters; while Hagen, the professional king and now British Champion for the third time, completes a trio that has bagged just about every distinction in sight.

Farrell's finish in 71-72 to gain his tie with Jones Saturday and his performance of 70-73 to carry off the laurels in the play-off rank among the greatest streaks of shotmaking any open championship has ever seen.

Jones Praises Champ.

One stroke in 108 holes isn't a lot to brag about. Farrell, shooting consecutive rounds of 77-74-71-72 and then 70-73, showed a grand total of 437, to beat Jones' procession of 73-71-73-77 and then 73-71 for an aggregate of 438. Yet it was decisive enough, if you take the word of no less authority than Bobby himself.

"Farrell shot great golf, so great that it would have been a shame for him to have been beaten by any lucky chance that came my way," said the great Georgian, in tribute to his conqueror, "Johnny won all the way."

Jones offered no alibi. He needed

none, in fact, for he shot courageous, frequently, brilliant golf.

Watching the Big Scoreboard

BY HERBERT W. BARKER

(Associated Press Sports Writer)
The National League pennant race is fast becoming a chase with seven clubs vainly trying to match strides with Bill McKechnie's rampaging St. Louis Cardinals.

Old Pete Alexander took his ancient right arm to the mound at Cincinnati yesterday and pitched the Cards to a 7 to 4 victory over the Reds. It was Alex's third triumph over Jack Hendrick's men in eight days. The veteran was hit hard in the early innings but some heavy artillery work by his teammates later saved the day and enabled the Cards to tighten their advantage over the field to five and a half games. The Reds dropped into fourth place.

Getting to Remy Kremer for six runs in the third inning, the Cubs halted the onrushing Pittsburgh Pirates at Chicago, 8 to 1. For the second day in succession Hack Wilson and Gabby Hartnett hit home runs. Art Nehf held the Corsair sluggers in check although he granted a dozen hits.

The Giants lost further ground by taking a 2 to 0 beating from Jess Petty and the Brooklyn Robins. Backed by superlative fielding, Petty kept the Giants in subjection from start to finish, allowing only six hits.

The New York Yankees stretched their margin over the American League field to eight and a half games by taking the measure of the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 0. George Pipgras turning in a three-hit performance for his 13th victory in 15 starts. Babe Ruth hit his 28th homer of the season to become 15 days, 19 games and 4 circuit drives up on his 1927 schedule when he eventually established a new high-water mark of 60.

Hadley outpitched George Earnshaw by a wide margin as the Senators took the Philadelphia Athletics into camp at Washington, 6 to 3.

George Grant was in rare form and the Cleveland Indians evened the series with the Browns at St. Louis, 4 to 2.

Detroit moved out of the cellar as Owen Carroll blanked the Chicago White Sox with seven hits, 6 to 0. After scoring a run in the fourth, the Tigers put the game on ice in the seventh with a five run rally featured by Harry Heilmann's home run with two on. The Sox took possession of last place as punishment for their defeat.

About Eye Health

By Percy Fridenberg, M. D., New York City

(The following is one of a series of articles prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial as part of its Better Health and Longer Life program. President Coolidge is the honorary president of the Memorial, which has been organized and endowed by prominent doctors and laymen throughout the country to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Gorgas Memorial are at 400 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago.)

Strange as it may seem, the eye, one of the most important factors in determining early symptoms of disease, is regarded by many as negligible and a rather superficial test of vision is usually considered sufficient. Now, normal vision is only just one of the requisites of sound eyes. There are a lot of others, and it requires a physician thoroughly trained in eye examination to determine them. A man may have a wonderful grip and yet be a sufferer from some neuromuscular disease; he may have normal vision and be proud of his eagle eye when expert examination would show signs, unmistakable evidence of some disease condition already at work.

Medical men speak of the pre-pathological states, those before actual tissue changes have taken place. We may well speak of pre-symptomatic states, in relation to the eye, as conditions prior to actual disease manifestations, pain, or disturbances of function, which show up very clearly to the expert in the course of a thorough eye examination. Just to take an example. There is a "blind spot" in every human eye, but as the blind spots in the two eyes do not correspond, one eye makes up for the other. Now, enlargement of the blind spot is an indication of a number of disease conditions which, at least at first, do not affect sight, but which, if neglected, not only destroy sight but general health as well. The examination of the interior of the eye gives valuable information as to arterial pressure, the condition of the heart and vessels, even of the state of the blood itself. Examination of the eyes and all of their functions will often reveal the unsuspected cause of sleeplessness, poor salesmanship, bad temper, absent-mindedness, lack of energy, in an optical defect or refraction error, which can be completely corrected by glasses, while such common symptoms as headache and dizziness, nausea and "sour stomach," chronic indigestion and constipation, flatulence and stomach cramps often point to an ocular source of trouble. It is by no means general that such obvious things as red lids, itching or burning of the eyes, rapid tiring with reading or writing, movie or theater headaches point unmistakably, and one might almost say exclusively, to the eyes as trouble makers. The routine and repeated eye survey is especially important in school children and in those engaged with short range work. This survey should include not only the eye of the worker, but the work itself and the light in which it is done. Good sight and good light should go together. Finally the periodic eye survey would afford the examining physician a very fine opportunity for a heart to heart talk on conservation of vision and eye health, prevention of injuries and possibly a word or two about first aid and what not to do.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

IF AL SMITH FEEDS THE MULE.
I'm just a plain old Democrat.
I've been one all my life.
Not much on styles and folderols.
And things which stir up strife,
I'll—though you dub me fool—
Tote water to the elephant
If Al Smith feeds the mule.

I've voted every ticket straight
Without a sigh or wail.
Rode true with all the nominees.
Though some were kind o' stale;
But dern it all, old Al's too much
I'll have to break the rule.
Feed peanuts to the elephant
If Al Smith feeds the mule.

I love the South with all my heart,
And memory keeps alive
The sacrifice supreme it made
From sixty-one to five;
But, heck! Ole Al's to rough a bird
I'll—never mind the rule—
Tote sorghum to the elephant
If Al Smith feeds the mule.

I'm drier than a desert drought,
I'm more than dry, you see.
Ole Al is wet, he's powerful wet;
Too wet, I fear, for me.
And so to keep from seeing snakes
I'll—though you dub me fool—
Tote water to the elephant
If Al Smith feeds the mule.

No Set Rules For Telephone Etiquette

There are no arbitrary rules for telephone etiquette. It is so far reaching as to include all the general amenities of daily life now associated with the use of the telephone that makes things easier and pleasanter for all concerned and, incidentally, insure the best results, according to a writer in the Christian Science Monitor.

Common sense, consideration for others and co-operation by both parties to the call are the prime essentials, the writer believes.

Clear enunciation over the telephone is not only good manners, helps obtain better service, but becomes a valuable social and business accomplishment, for, unconsciously, the intelligent use of the telephone leads to a more careful choice of words and more pleasing tone of voice, he says.

An upward inflection of the voice gives a cheerier air to the conversation. Brevity and conciseness over the telephone should not be mistaken for curtness or brusqueness, which are always quickly noticeable at the other end of the wire and should be carefully avoided. Another element of telephone etiquette is the prompt answer to a call and in making yourself known at once, while the party who makes the call is usually the one who should end the conversation.
